MOTION regarding the addendum to the UIA preamble, adopted in Cairo, 1985

The addendum to the UIA preamble, adopted in Cairo, 1985, reads:

The Preamble can have meaning only in a world with peace among nations. The greatest obligation of governments in relation to humanity is the preservation of peace as the basis for realising the needs and ambitions of people throughout the world. Governments should stop production for war and use their resources for improvement of conditions for all humanity.

All member-sections of the UIA have promised to adhere to this.

To demonstrate commitment to the UIA Preamble, the following motion is put up for adoption:

All UIA member sections must within 90 days of the adoption of this motion sign the following confirmation of their commitment to the UIA Preamble adopted in Cairo, 1985. Failure to sign the preamble will count as resignation of membership.

The UIA Member Section _____ hereby states that we as architects stand by the UIA preamble, including the passage that reads:

The greatest obligation of governments in relation to humanity is the preservation of peace as the basis for realising the needs and ambitions of people throughout the world. Governments should stop production for war and use their resources for improvement of conditions for all humanity.
